HEATHER WILBERGER

Chief Information Officer

>>>

Heather Wilberger is Bedrock's Chief Information Officer, responsible for overseeing and managing the information technology team and all strategic technology acquisitions for the company. Heather brings to Bedrock more than 15 years of experience in information technology, both in the public and private sectors. Her specialties range from designing and implementing networks, to minimizing redundancies for our systems, to implementing and managing all software as it relates to the property management acquisition and development portions of our business. Before coming to Bedrock, the newly minted Michigan resident was most recently the CIO for a large-scale residential and commercial property management firm on the West Coast.
